"WeRatedogs" is a Twitter account rates dogs' pictures. The rating is between 1 and 10 but mostly it is above 10. They admit that every dog deserves a 10.
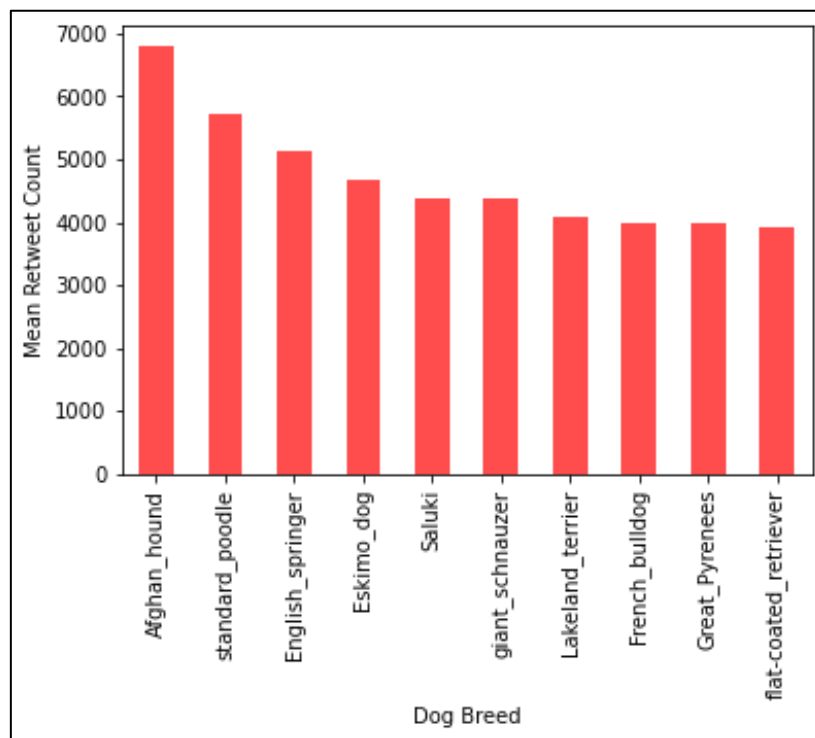

After wrangling the data of about 1500 tweets from the account. I built some insights as follows.
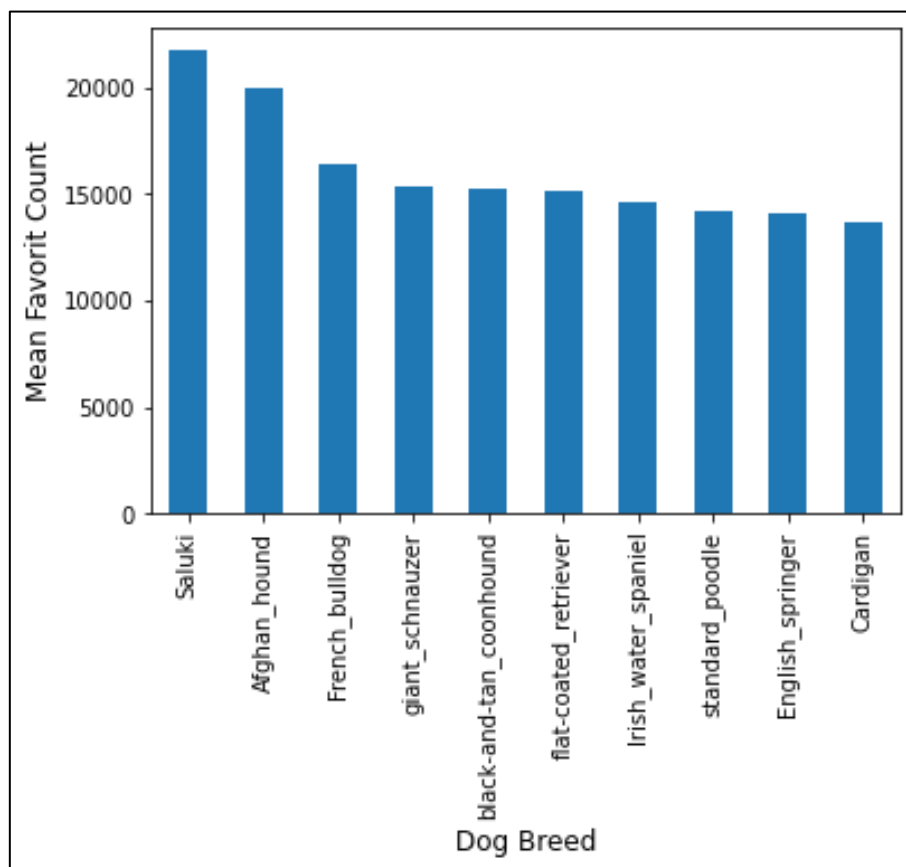

A) Most common dog breed

From the next figure, we find that golden_retriever is the most popular breed with about 140 ratings.

But we can see that the most popular breed in retweets is Afghan_hound.

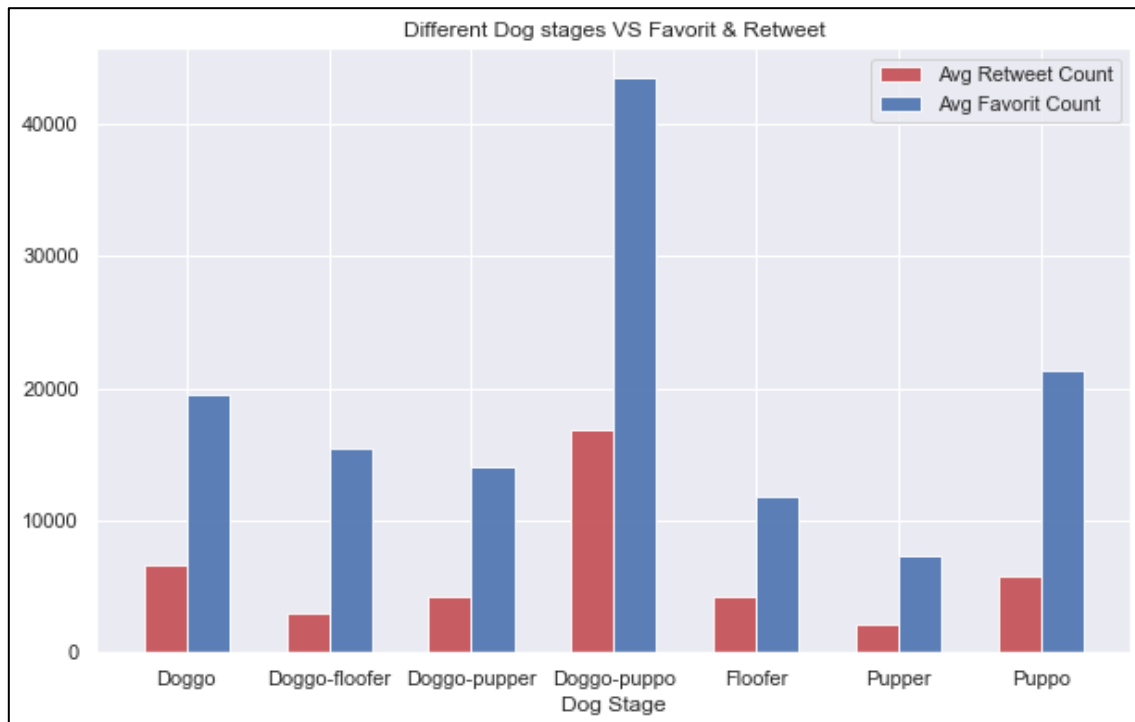

And the most favorite breed is Saluki.

B) Most common dog stage

From the figure, we found that the most popular dog stage in retweets and most favorites are in the Doggo-puppo stage.

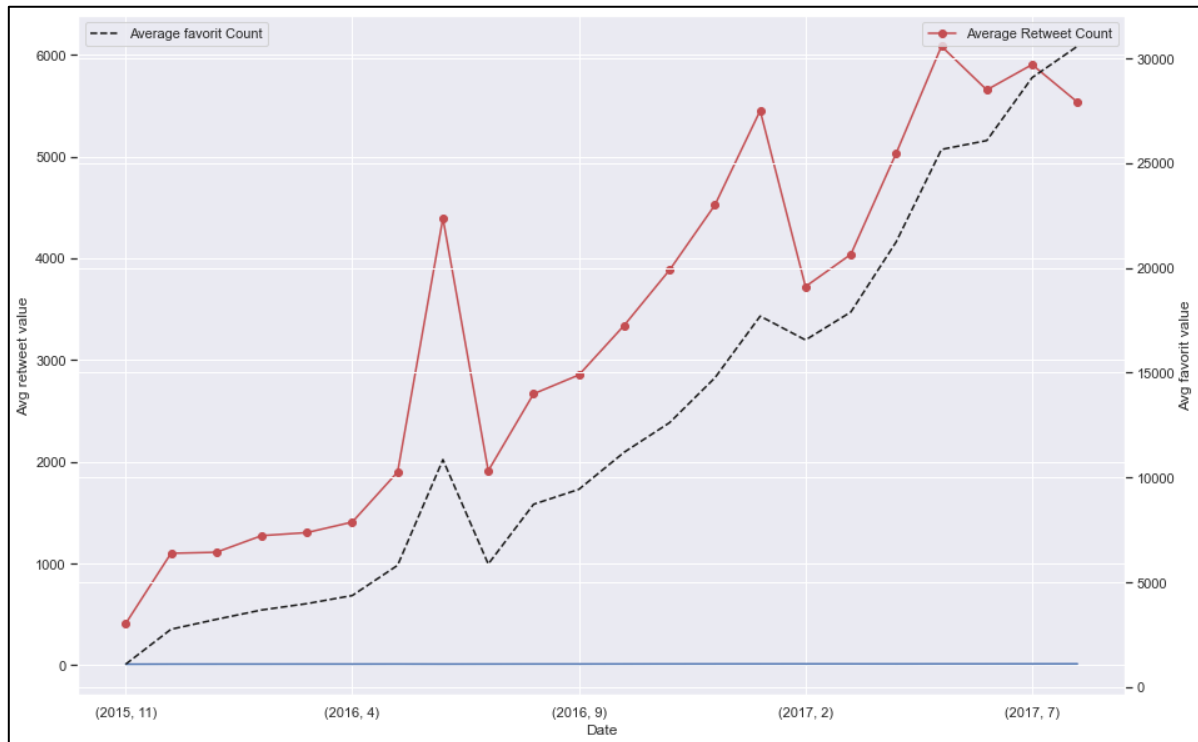

C) Relation of rating values with time

From the figure, we found that the average rating value increased over time with some drops.

D) Relation of retweets count and favorite count with time

From the figure, we found that the average count and favorite increase over time with some peaks and drops.

E) The most common dog name

From the next figure, we find that most dog names are equal in popularity.
